PARTY LINES

Drawn on the Hawaiian Question.

President Cleveland's Message is Anxiously Awaited.

Congressman Springer in Hearty Accord With Gresham's Views—We Should Right the Wrong We Have Done Hawaii.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The Hawaiian incident is attracting much attention in congressional circles, and such senators and representatives as are in the city are evincing lively interest in the latest developments. Even at this early day it is accepted as inevitable that the matter will receive congressional attention immediately after the opening of the session and all the indications point to a division on strict party lines.

The representatives accept the Gresham letter as a criticism of the late administration, and the promptitude with ex-President Harrison and ex-Minister Stevens responded has had the signal effect of lining the republicans up in opposition to the policy of President Cleveland's administration.

Congressman Hitt, ex-assistant secretary of state, and a diplomat of the Blaine school, has come out in condemnation of the government to restore the deposed queen and his statements on the subject have stirred up considerable partisan feeling.

It is the belief of the democratic leaders that, whatever may occur at Hawaii in the interval, President Cleveland will submit a message at the opening of the regular session which will recite in detail many facts not hitherto known to this country and present the case in probably a new light. In this connection great interest is felt in the report of Special Commissioner Blount, which has never been made public, and as it will accompany the prospective message, democrats feel confident that his researches will show that the facts were such as to warrant the delicate action of the administration.

The democrats expect to be placed on the defensive at the beginning, because they believe that the policy of the republicans will be to attack the president on constitutional grounds, it being contended by them that the provisional government of Hawaii, having once been recognized, to remove it now by force will be equivalent to declaring an aggressive war against an independent nation, a thing only possible for the president to do after receiving the assent and concurrence of congress. The democrats, who a day or two ago were expressing themselves so freely on this diplomatic subject, have shut up quite suddenly since the indications have pointed to a division on party lines when the matter comes before congress.

Congressman Geary, of California, a member of the committee on foreign affairs, and whose constituents have a lively interest in the Hawaiian question, today said: "All the facts are not before the people yet and I would prefer to say nothing until later. As a member of the committee, too, it would be indiscreet in me to express an opinion on a matter that may come before us for consideration."

Hon. Wm. M. Springer, of Illinois, for many years a member of the committee on foreign affairs, (notably during the Japan controversy of 1876), believes that President Cleveland will be sustained by his party and the country. "I am thoroughly in accord with the administration on the Hawaiian question," said Mr. Springer. "I believed at the time that the government of the Hawaii would not have been overthrown but for the direct interposition of the United States marines, which were landed for the purpose of overawing and overpowering the legitimate government and establishing a provisional government in its place. Without the presence of our troops the provisional government could have had no existence. As we were then at peace with Hawaii, there was no excuse whatever for this interposition. The excuse that American property was in danger was a mere pretext and without foundation in fact. Our government, therefore, having by force of arms overthrown the legitimate government of Hawaii, justice, international law, and the comity of nations require that we should replace the government in statue quo."

"The Harrison administration," resumed Mr. Springer, "did, it is true, recognize the provisional government and it therefore became the duty of Mr. Cleveland's administration to maintain the statu quo, which he found when installed into office until he could, through his own agents, make a careful and thorough investigation of all the facts which led to the overthrow of the Hawaiian government. Having made an investigation, through his own agents, it was his duty to act upon the information which he obtained. This is what he has done, and if any criticisms could be offered it would be that he had perhaps delayed too long to do an act of simple justice to a weak and defenceless people. But exercising proper regard for the late administration, and pursuing the usual considerate and careful methods of diplomacy, Secretary Gresham has acted at perhaps as early a period as it was respectful for him to do—respectful, I mean, to his predecessors in office.

"I am not in favor of annexation of Hawaii. The population is not homogenious, their civilization is different from ours; we could no more incorporate them into our body politic than we could incorporate a horde of Chinese. We require that Hawaii shall be an independent country, where our government will have equal rights with all others, to use the land as a coaling station, as a harbor of refuge and as a friendly port upon the high seas for all our merchant marine, and, while I am opposed to annexation by this government, I am equally opposed to any other government seizing the islands, and if England should attempt to do so, our government should regard it as a 'casus belli,' and resent it accordingly. Our policy of non-intervention in the case would furnish us a good excuse for insisting that England should do likewise. I think the democrates in congress will sustain the administration without a doubt."

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—Senator John H. Mitchell, of Oregon, has arrived in the city from Washington. He has positive views on the Hawaiian question. In an interview he said he thought that the government might be better employed than trying to resuscitate the defunct monarchy in Hawaii. The news of President Cleveland's intentions has astounded him, and in his opinion the recognition of the monarchy is a decided mistake.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 14.—Steamer Champion did not sail secretly for Honolulu as reported, but for Great Britain to go out of commission. On her return from Behring Sea she underwent a general survey to ascertain whether she was fit to recommission here. The result was that she was ordered to the English dock yards to be overhauled and paid out of commission. On this order she sailed for home several days ago. Possibly she may call at Honolulu, but it is understood she had no instructions from here to do so. Steamer Nymph, which sailed recently for the southern seas waited several days for a new medical officer for the Hyacinthe now at Honolulu, where she will go to place him on board.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 14.—H. U. Castle, formerly editor of the Advertiser, of Honolulu, Hawaii, who is visiting relatives here, says it is not true that the queen was deposed by the American minister or the American forces. The American forces were passive spectators of the conflict from beginning to end. In speaking of the proposal to reinstate the queen by this government Mr. Castle says: "It can't be done without the grossest injustice to hundreds of persons who have relied upon the good faith of the United States. The queen's government, at best, would be simply a paper government unless supplanted by American bayonets. Putting it back means simply using the full force of the United States government in order to destroy the party of progress and ability."

CLEVERLY CAUGHT.

Electricity and the Camera as Criminal Detectives.

Three Suspects, Who Robbed a Store, Confronted With a Photograph and Confess Their Guilt.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 14.—Three burglars, trapped by electricity and the camera, have confessed to robbing the store of Foster, Stevens & Co., hardware.

For some time the firm has been a loser by persistent till tapping, and all other devices failing, two electricians arranged a camera focused on the cash drawer, and an electric connection was made with the Edison company's plant to operate it.

A burglar alarm device was fitted in the cash drawer, so that when the till was opened the electric connection was made, and the shutter of the camera opened exposed the lense and at the same instant setting off a calcium flash-light. As soon as the flash-light fuse burned out it broke the circuit and the camera lense closed automatically with the photographs of the till tappers imprinted on the instantaneous plate.

The three young men in the job were startled by the flash light, but as no demonstration followed they finished the job in peace. The suspects were arrested, and when confronted by the photograph broke down and have made full confessions. Their names are Lewis Stoneburner and Charles and Henry Snyder. They all live here.

WHISKY AND CARDS

Ruined Wm. Lanham, Arrested for Counterfeiting.

Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 14.—Wm. Lanham, under arrest on a charge of counterfeiting, has made a full confession. Lanham was the man who rented the room in McCoy's livery stable where the outfit was found yesterday. He says that he and Commodore Brown, also under arrest, were on their way to commence work when captured. Lanham was once a prosperous business man. He is a native of Sullivan county, where he has a wife and one child. Some years ago he was engaged in the boot and shoe business at Clinton. Whisky and cards caused him to fail as a merchant. His affairs went from bad to worse until his wife was compelled to leave him. He has been about Terre Haute during the last two years.

Degree of Honor No. 11 meets tonight, at their hall, on Court street.

NEW TARIFF BILL.

It Will be Completed in a Short Time.

The Committee Will Not Wait for an Approval of a Caucus, but Will Rush the Bill in Congress.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The new democratic tariff bill will probably be made public at a much earlier date than has generally been anticipated. The notes of apprehension which have been sounded since the late election have warned the resolute tariff reformers of the party that chances of party success and discipline depend on boldness and promptitude in defining a policy, and all haste consistent with deliberation is being made by the democratic members to complete the bill and give it to the country.

It is already definitely settled that the committee will not wait for the approval of a caucus before presenting the measure to the people. While some of the democratic members of the committee think that the bill might be strengthened in the house by first gaining the approval of the party caucus, the majority feel that the submission of the bill to caucus would only lead to interminable wrangling and possibly create a party dissension which might seriously embarass the measure in its consideration later in the house.

Besides, the democratic leaders contend that the party has sufficient confidence in its members of the ways and means committee to be quite willing to accept as satisfactory the bill prepared by them after so many weeks of deliberation and that the report accompanying it will be of a character strong enough to silence any fastidious criticism within the party.

The ways and means committee—or at least the democratic members of it—are doing all their work in sub committees, and the bill is so rapidly nearing completion that a large portion of the report is already prepared. While it is literally true that not a single schedule has been finally passed upon by the full committee, it is none the less true that the entire bill, sub-divided as it is among sub-committees, is now nearly completed. Although it is practically certain that the tariff bill in its entirety will be announced to the public in ten days or two weeks, the details of the measure will not be generally known until after its publication. After the sub-committees have completed their labors, the entire bill will be reviewed by the full democratic membership, and, as soon as finally approved, will be handed to the clerk of the house and at once announced to the public as introduced.

The protests against the free list are still coming in, the most emphatic ones now being from iron ore and coal men. A telegram has been received from the Alabama people who desire to be heard, and Chairman Wilson and his colleagues have consented to give an informal hearing to these gentlemen any time this week. This delegation will include a committee from the iron and coal interests of Birmingham, the chief manufacturing city of the south, and it is probable that Senator Pugh and Congressman Wheeler may also accompany the delegation when it makes its arguments. The protests of the whisky men do not seem to be attracting much attention. Congressman Montgomery, of Kentucky, the great whisky producing state, is a member of the committee on ways and means, and says: "I think that in my state the objection to raising the whisky tax is from the distillers rather than the consumers. Even the distillers are not making much of a protest, though, of course, they would prefer not to have the tax increased. The consumers are not making any objection and if they do so at all, will probably not do it until after the law is passed."

One of the hitches which have occurred in making the tariff bill, and which has not yet been settled, is the disposition of the sugar schedule. It is that as the bill now stands it removes the bounty and does not restore any duty whatever. The opponents of this plan have painted out that such a bill will certainly cause the loss of support by the majority of the Louisiana delegation in the house, and the bill would also be endangered by reason of the withdrawal of support by the Louisiana senators when the bill reached the senate.

Another rumor is in circulation in the shape of a statement attributed to Chairman Wilson to the effect that he would like to see a bill framed which would make the pension appropriations payable by the internal revenue taxes and that there should be increases in the internal taxes to meet the pension expenditures. This suggestion and in fact all suggestions that points to an increase in internal revenue taxes meets with a great deal of opposition, especially from the south, from which the ways and means committee expects to get the necessary votes to pass the tariff bill.

FREED FROM THE CHARGES.

Thomas Bristow and Frank Moore the Ones Accused.

Indianapolis, Nov. 14.—Thomas Bristow and Frank Moore, arrested on evidence of the latter's mother charging them with the murder of John Young, were released by the grand jury, who decided that the charges against the two men were groundless. Mrs. Moore told a circumstantial story of Bristow and her son coming home on the night of the murder and talking it over after they went to bed, and she also swore that Bristow had blood upon his clothing. Moore said that his mother was insane and a number of witnesses testified before the jury to her erratic actions. Testimony was also given showing that Moore was on a farm seven miles south of the city on the day of the murder and that he had not been in the city for two weeks before it took place. Mrs. Moore is evidently insane. Young was killed in a low resort in a quarrel about a woman, but no effort has been sufficient to make her tell who the murderer was.

BIG FAILURE.

The Thurber-Wyland Company Make an Assignment.

Liabilities Estimated at $800,000, and the Assets are Unknown—A Middlesboro Bank Fails.

New York, Nov. 14.—Judge Andrews, of the supreme court, today appointed Andrew Kirkpatrick and Thomas Reid receivers for the Thurber-Wyland company. Francis B. Thurber, president of the company, in the application for a receiver, says in his affidavit that the debts of the concern aggregate $800,000, of which $500,000 is commercial paper. The company, he says, does a business of $125,000 a week. It was organized in December, 1890. It conducted an important domestic and importing wholesale grocery business at Read and Hudson streets and West Broadway. The company was in trouble during last season's panic, but pulled through with the aid of leading bankers of the city. Its stock has been quoted very low recently. It is said that this is due to the action of small holders in continually selling.

Middlesboro, Ky., Nov. 14.—The Coal and Iron bank, the last bank doing business here, closed its doors this morning. Assets and liabilities unknown. The bank was organized in 1889, with a capital of $500,000, backed by the American association. It has lost through depreciation of land values $250,000. The American association failed a month ago, which was a heavy blow. General depression of business here added to it. The assets are now nominal; liabilities unknown.

BRAVELY RESIST ROBBERS.

Bold Stand Made Against Bandits by a Train's Crew.

Mount Pulaski, Ill., Nov. 14.—The Peoria, Decatur and Evansville express from Peoria to Mattoon was boarded at the coal shaft at Lincoln last night at 8:45 o'clock by three masked men, two on the front of the rear coach and one on the back. The conductor, Chris Richmond, started through the combination car to take tickets, and, as he opened the door of the car, was confronted by one of the robbers, who ordered him to throw up his hands. He closed the door and informed the brakeman they were attempting to rob the train.

The brakeman, W. F. Trott, took a club and opened the car door, when he was shot in the abdomen by one of the robbers. The conductor cut the bell rope and he and the express messenger extinguished the light in the express car and barred the door. The train ran through to Mount Pulaski, where the robbers got off. As the train stopped the express messenger, peeping from the dark through the door took two shots at them, neither of which took effect.

A tramp who was stealing a ride on the trucks saw one robber get off at Salt creek bridge and roll down the embankment. The wounded brakeman was taken care of here by Drs. Nolan, Oyler and Munson, and is resting easy, with chances doubtful as to his recovery.

DROPPED DEAD.

Editor Beane, of the Goshen Democrat.

Goshen, Ind., Nov. 14.

W. A. Beane, the veteran editor of the Goshen Democrat, this morning dropped dead at his office.

He had been fifty years with the same paper and was the best known journalist in the state.

THREE YEARS.

A Light Sentence Falls Upon Claire Robinson.

Special to The Sentinel.

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 14.—Claire Robinson was found guilty of robbing the Normal school in this city and sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. The sentence is considered a light one.

SPIDER AND FLY.

The Scenic Production at the Temple Tonight.

At the Temple tonight M. B. Leavitt's spectacular, "The Spider and Fly," will be presented. The company numbers over fifty people, and the costumes, scenery, electrical and mechanical effects are all new. The play contains everything which tends to pass an enjoyable evening. A grand scenic effect is immediately followed by some new and artistic specialty, then comes a song, which is succeeded by a grand character ballet, the whole interspersed with comedy.

POOR SPAIN!

Her Army Disaffected and Her Treasury Empty.

The Government and its Officials in a State of Panic and Fears of an Outbreak are Entertained.

London, Nov. 14.—A letter from the Spanish agent of a great commercial house of this city, has been received here, and has caused much comment in commercial circles. The writer of this letter says that the condition of affairs in Spain is decidedly critical. Public confidence is at the lowest ebb. It is added that the government and other officials are in a state of panic and that the army is notoriously disaffected, greatly owing to the fact that its pay is in arrears. The Melilla disturbances have not diverted the attention of the people from the Barcelona dynamite bomb outrage, which has further inflamed the public against the government, and this state of affairs is causing much alarm and may lead to the most serious consequences.

Mr. Ramsden, the British consul at Santiago, who is now in London, has received a telegram assuring him of the pacific condition of Cuba and saying that the report of a revolt on that island comes from the Cuban party in Florida.

COLUMBIAN GUARDS

Tire of Playing Soldier and Will Become the Real Thing.

They Will Go to Honduras and be Mustered Into the Regular Army Service.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—The Columbian guard, who with brass sword and gleaming star has played so important a part in the world's fair, has decided not to retire to the oblivion of private life, but will, it is said, to the number of 150, go to Honduras and fight with a bigger sword for South American liberty. Dr. Thackery, division superintendent in the department of manufactures, is said to be the originator in the idea of forming a Columbian army for Honduras, and the guards have taken kindly to the scheme. It is said that Honduras is going to have an exposition of its own next year and that the president wants the Americans to guard his show. After the fair is over the Honduras government, it is claimed, will muster the guards into its regular army. One hundred and fifty of the exposition soldiers have already promised to go to South America, and it is expected more will follow.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

A Thief Enters a Residence in Broad Daylight.

He Smashes a Trunk, Carries Off Sixty Dollars, a Fine Revolver and a Gold Watch.

There was another big robbery in Fort Wayne yesterday afternoon, and the city police have been keeping their weather eyes open.

Julius Schuck is an employe of the Pennsylvania company who works at the cinder pit on Lafayette street. He boards at the residence of a man named Siegmund, who is a tailor working for Jaxtheimer, and who lives near the east yards.

During the afternoon Mrs. Siegmund had occasion to go out to do some trading. While she was gone some burglar cut open the screen in the kitchen window and entering the house went directly to the room of Schuck, which was up stairs. He evidently had a club or stick of wood, for the trunk was mashed into pieces as though by a sledge hammer. Its contents were then rifled and $60 in cash, an $8 revolver and a $57 gold watch were taken. The watch did not belong to Mr. Schuck but was the property of a colored woman named Gale, who had borrowed $10 to go to the world's fair and had put up her watch as security. There is a slight clue to the thief, who is supposed to live in that locality.

OHIO'S GREATEST VOTE.

Governor McKinley Supported By the Largest Constituency Known in Ohio.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Official returns on the republican and democratic vote have been received at the republican state headquarters from eighty counties and the pluralities from the remaining eight. The figures show that McKinley received the highest number of votes ever cast for a candidate in Ohio. The total number of votes to his credit, according to this latest estimate—and the official count will vary but little—is 432,901. This exceeds by 16,391 the vote given D. J. Ryan, republican candidate for secretary of state in 1888. In that year President Harrison received 416,054, and in 1892 he received 405,187, showing an excess of the McKinley vote of 16,847 over Harrison in 1888, and 27,714 over him in 1892. When the official figures are announced by the secretary of state the vote for the governor will stand substantially:

McKinley (Rep.)	[illegible]
Neal (Dem.)	[illegible]
Lacklin (Pro.)	[illegible]
Bracken (Pop.)	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]
McKinley's plurality	[illegible]
McKinley's majority over all	[illegible]

The prohibition vote indicates a loss in comparison with 1892 of between 4,000 and 5,000 and the populist vote shows an increase of 1,423.

The "Lazy Six" give a dance at Schroeder's hall, next Monday night. It has been remarked that no lazy time will be experienced.

FIRE AT MEMPHIS.

Y. M. C. A. Building Burned to the Ground.

One Man Loses His Life and Others are Injured by Jumping From the Windows.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 14.—This city was visited by a disastrous fire last night. The fire originated in the lower floor of the six story building known as the Wetter block, on Main street, between Monroe and Union streets, and occupied by the Schmaltzreid Hardware company. The second, third, fourth and fifth stories were occupied by the Young Men's Christian association. The building was entirely consumed.

At 1:30 this morning it was ascertained that Thomas H. Bond, residing on McLemore avenue, lost his life in the fire. He was last seen on the third floor in the gymnasium room of the Y. M. C. A. and nothing has been seen or heard of him since. Mr. Bond is down in the directory as "traveling agent." A. K. Perkins, of the Y. M. C. A., received a fractured skull when he fell while descending by means of a tin gutter. At midnight last night he was reported very low, and his injuries will probably prove fatal. The negro porter, who also jumped from a window, sustained serious internal injuries. E. Boardman, a young man who was in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, jumped from the second story window and broke his right leg. C. R. White sustained a fracture of the right arm. The loss is about $175,000; insurance about half that amount.

LAKE DISASTERS.

The Steamer Centurion on a Sand Bar.

Light Cabin Wreckage Marked "Conistoe" Picked Up on Lake Michigan.

Mackinac Island, Mich., Nov. 14.—Light cabin wreckage and a water tank marked steamer Conistoe have come ashore here. There was a northwest snow storm during the night and it is feared an accident has happened in the straits.

Sault Ste Marie, Mich., Nov. 14.—The big steamer Centurion, the largest boat on the great lakes, is stranded at the middle ground, Round Island. She went on last night and her former compartments are taking water. Tugs gone with lighters to try and release her.

A LOADED CIGAR

Causes the Death of Anarchist Ling.

Ex-Convict Neebe Says the Jail Officials Schemed and Carried Out the Murder.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—At an anarchist meeting last night, Oscar Neebe, recently pardoned by Governor Altgeld, said that Ling, whose head was blown to pieces by dynamite while he was under sentence of death, was the victim of the jail guards and was not a suicide. Neebe claimed that the dead anarchist was given a loaded cigar by some of the jail officials, and it was that, and not as alleged, a detonating cap which killed the condemned man.

THIS IS ENTERPRISE.

The Aldine Printing Company Did Not Succumb to Flames.

The Aldine printing office was completely destroyed by fire last Sunday morning, but the enterprise and push of the firm remains intact, and the establishment will continue to turn out first class job work as of old. Forty-eight hours after the fire Mr. Clarence E. Cook, the head of the Aldine Printing company, had completed arrangements for the continuance of business, and Wing & Mahurin are now at work upon plans for an office building that will be located just east of the Aldine hotel. The new office will be complete in every detail and especially fitted up for just such a purpose. Meantime the printing offices of the city have one and all offered to the manager, Mr. Clarence E. Cook, all the facilities they possess to enable him to fill contracts already taken. He has secured the old Press office, on Court street, as temporary headquarters, where persons having new business in his line will find him prepared to see them and ready to entertain and accept all reasonable offers. Enterprise and grit like this deserve success. The Aldine Printing company was not established to be cleaned out by an ordinary fire. Business men will please note the fact.

Torpedo Boat Lost.

Gibraltar, Nov. 14.—While practicing in the harbor today, a torpedo boat, belonging to the British war ship Rodney, was sunk. A stoker was drowned, but the rest of the crew were rescued.

Will Prosecute Anarchists.

Paris, Nov. 14.—At a cabinet council, held today, it was decided to prosecute the anarchist paper, La Pere Peinard, for extolling the Barcelona dynamite bomb outrage.

The auditing committee of the Wayne Building and Loan Association met at the tailor shop of George Motz last night, examined the books of the treasurer and found the organization in flourishing condition. The association is now in its seventh year.

A title to real estate has been quieted in the plaintiff in the case of Alcibiades J. Doggett against Levi C. Talbott and others.

The skating rink will open soon.

TWO JURIES DRAWN.

The Grand Jury and Petit Jury of the Circuit Court.

First Victory for Plaintiff in Rose Water Power Company Case—The Day in the Courts.

The jury commissioners met this morning and drew the grand and the petit juries for the November term of the circuit court, which convenes next Monday. The grand jury is as follows:

M. L. Gruber, Scipio.
Thomas Greer, Pleasant.
Anthony Kohlmeyer, St. Joe.
William Jobs, Lafayette.
Allen Bowser, City.
Wm. Robinson, Eel River.

The petit jury selected by the commissioners is as follows:

John Rapp, Lake township.
Franklin Otto, Perry.
Marion Smith, Marion.
Solomon Chapman, Perry.
Charles Griebel, City.
James Lindermuth, Scipio.
Joseph Harding, Milan.
William J. Reddin, Lafayette.
James Smith, City.
Joseph Burrier, Springfield.
Phillip Arrants, City.
George Wherry, Monroe.

In the case of Christian Rose against the Fort Wayne Water Power company, which has been in the superior court for so long and had so many hearings on the legal phases of the case, Judge Dawson this morning announced his special findings based on the law in the case. He held that the plaintiff was entitled to recover $165 from the defendants as damages for overflowing his lands with the waters from their dam, and also that the defendants be enjoined from overflowing the lands of the plaintiff. There were other rulings and findings, but the case is not ended. It will go to the supreme court of the state.

Clara Gardner went before Justice Wilkinson today and had her husband, James Gardner, arrested on the charge of provoke. They have not been living together for some time and she complains that James comes to her home every few days and abuses her, cursing her and calling her names.

Mart Busch and Emma Brookling. Joseph Romary and Marguerette Slater have been licensed to wed.

In the superior court, in the case of John H. Byers vs. the heirs of John Shank, title has been quieted to the plaintiff.

Albert Kummer, John Wagner and Charles Farin, three boys, were before Justice Ryan this afternoon for a Hallowe'en depredation, being charged with breaking the window glass in the house of Julia Kummer.

The coroner has rendered a verdict that Frederick Colyer, of Monroeville, came to his death by having accidentally shot himself.

The prosecuting attorney is holding an examination of witnesses this afternoon before Mayor Zollinger to get information in regard to the unlawful selling of liquor at the Wayne club rooms.

Mr. Colerick is pushing the matter and is determined that the Wayne club shall obey the law just as our citizens are compelled to do, and in this he is right.

This club should not have the privilege of dispensing liquors on Sunday when the saloons are prohibited from so doing.

Justice Ryan yesterday gave a judgment in favor of De Lafayette [illegible] against Michael Weidinger, of St. Joseph township, for possession of a house and two acres of land.

Yesterday the sheriff served subpoenas on P. A. Randall, N. D. Doughman, Jacob Baltes and several other prominent citizens to appear in court at Muncie on November 27 to testify in a case where one Mary Elmer asks for foreclosure of a two-hundred-dollar mortgage against some property on which the Fort Wayne gentlemen have a lien.

R. N. Cook was bound over in the sum of $300 by Justice France yesterday for obtaining money by false pretenses. He is the man who started out as the representative of three or four photograph galleries. He collected $1 from those who were duped into giving him orders and said he would collect the other $1 in December when he delivered the pictures. The pictures could not be gotten up for less than $4 or $5, as the materials would cost that much alone.

SHOCKING EXECUTION.

A Negro Hanged and His Body Burned.

The Participants in the Outrage Were Negroes, Whose Object Was Revenge for Murder.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Nov. 14.—Tremendous excitement reigns at Varner, a station on the Iron Mountain railway, twenty miles south of here, over the lynching, shooting and burning, early this morning, of a negro named Nelson, who a week ago murdered another negro. A mob, consisting exclusively of colored people, broke down the jail, hung Nelson to a convenient tree, riddled his body with bullets, and then set fire to it. This morning fragments of it were still found dangling from the limb. It had been raining hard all night and the moisture saved a part of the body, which was an almost unrecognizable mass of roasted flesh.

AFTER THE FIRE.

Many Funny Things Being Told by Sufferers.

A Bashful Traveling Man's Gallantry—The Aldine Printing Co. to Resume—Benefits Talked Of.

The work of clearing up the ruins of Sunday morning's disastrous fire goes bravely on. The theater will hardly be rebuilt, but as soon as the insurance companies adjust the losses Colonel Fosler will begin to rebuild.

Last night Colonel Geary gave a performance at Schroeder's hall to a good audience and will continue to do so every night this week, except Friday night, when he will produce "Camille" at the Temple. A subscription paper has been started for Mr. Geary. It is headed by Fred Eckart, who gives $25. Other subscriptions are: W. H. Stewart, $5; Barbers' union, $10; McDonald and Taylor, $20; S. C. Lumbard, $10; Murray Hartnett, $10. Murray Hartnett has the paper.

Many funny things are being told by sufferers from the fire. A traveling man named W. T. Laverty, of Dayton, Ohio, during the progress of the fire drifted into the back part of the hotel, where he was immediately surrounded by hysterical girls who threw their arms about his neck and implored him to save them. He is very bashful but did what he could to help the frantic creatures.

Miss Frankie A. Folsom, of New Bedford, Mass., a guest of the Aldine hotel, whose room was the second one on the top floor to catch fire, upon hearing the alarm, sprang from her bed and partially dressing, commenced packing her two trunks and was successful in saving nearly all her effects by her personal efforts. She dragged her trunks from the room, which the fire had entered, and saw them safely landed in a store on Barr street. No woman probably ever packed her trunks in such a hurry.

Clarence Cook, of the Aldine Printing Co., states there will be no interruption in his business. Mr. Fosler will build them a new building on the lot just east of the Aldine hotel site. Plans are now being prepared by Architects Wing & Mahurin. This building will be especially designed for their business and will be equipped with all modern conveniences for doing job printing in the highest style of the art. Ground will be broken for the building next week. In the mean time they have secured quarters in the Foster block, where the old Daily Press was located. New type and presses have already been ordered, and in ten days or two weeks their temporary quarters will be as well equipped as was their office before the fire.

At their regular meeting last night, Journeymen Barbers' union No. 14 passed resolutions expressing their sympathy for James Geary in the loss by fire of his theater, Sunday morning. They decided to attend the benefit at the Masonic Temple Friday night in a body, and voted him a donation of $10, inasmuch as he had in the past proven himself a good friend of organized labor.

Cora May, the dining room girl who was rendered temporarily insane by fright, was reported some better last night. A strong effort will be made to give the girl a benefit. They deserve one.

BIG POLICE COURT.

Five Toughs and Drunks Were Up for Trial.

Louis Bailey Arrested Upon a Charge of Being Implicated in the Greensfelder Robbery.

There was a large attendance at police court this morning, and five cases were disposed of by Mayor Zollinger.

The first case called was that of Charles Livingston, a very well dressed barber, of Hillsdale, Mich. The prisoner testified that he came to this city last week with a large sized jag and $28 in cash. He was robbed or lost the money and yesterday morning found himself driven to begging. He used very insulting language to a number of citizens near the corner of Ewing and Washington streets. Officer McCrory and Lieutenant Lapp made the arrest. Livingston seemed quite penitent, but was fined $5 and costs for being a vag. He went to jail.

Julius Snyder, another stranger, who said he just came in from Missouri, was found very drunk on Murray street by Officer Limecooley. He was fined $1 and costs.

Henry Schreck is an old time and notorious offender. Yesterday he went about town terrorizing the saloonkeepers and refusing to pay for drinks. He had several fights and resisted Officer Quinn, who made the arrest. Schreck had nothing to say at police court and was sent to jail for fourteen days. He is known to be a bad man and looks it.

Tom Brady was a maudlin specimen of the human race, who was drunk and silly. He was a fair specimen of what an animal whisky can make out of a man. He went to jail.

In the case of Louis Bailey, arrested by Sergeant Bergman upon the charge of being implicated in the robbery of the Greensfelder residence last week, the prosecutor asked for further time to secure witnesses. The case was therefore continued until this afternoon. It is said Baily stood watch while the other two burglars went in the house.

STRANGER THAN FICTION.

Truth Once More Proves Itself Wonderful.

The Lady Herself Tells This Remarkable Story.

Such Facts Should Have a Most Powerful Influence on the Public.

This was surprising news for the little town of Rochester, N. H., where all the facts are known and have been widely commented on, and we believe our readers will be deeply interested when all the details are made known.

Mrs. Lewis M. Henderson resides at 10 Rod Road, Rochester, N. H., and when asked about the matter, spoke freely and unreservedly.

"For a long time," she said, "I was very weak and delicate in health. Doctors called my trouble lung and heart disease. I had a very bad cough and spit up blood every day. I was very weak and prostrated and had a number of spells of falling to the floor and also when outdoors, in which attacks they thought I was dying.

"I was so nervous my limbs would draw up as though I had the cramp. I was so badly off, so weak and run down, that I had to give up and take to my bed.

"I kept my room for almost three months. I then began to take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I believe that this medicine is all that saved my life.

MRS. LEWIS M. HENDERSON.

"I have received the greatest possible benefit from its use, and both my husband and myself believe that I could not have lived without it."

Facts like this speak volumes for this medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. If it can make such a remarkable cure as that of Mrs. Henderson it is indeed a most wonderful remedy, a medical discovery which is the greatest blessing to our people. If it will cure such a bad case as Mrs. Henderson's was, it is an assured fact that it will cure all who are ailing, run down in health or out of order with poor blood, weak nerves, stomach, liver and kidney diseases. It will surely make the weak strong, the sick well. Besides it is purely vegetable and harmless.

Doctors widely recommend its use. It is indeed a physician's prescription, the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York, who is so wonderfully successful in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

The Hawaiian question is the topic of the hour now.

The saloon bar of the Fort Wayne club should have no more rights than the other saloons of the city.

These golden days are very well, unique in weather annals, but wise are they who have prepared a stock of winter flannels.

When the Hawaiian question is generally understood all parties will indorse the justice of the views of Secretary Gresham.

The principle that allows by law the selling of intoxicating liquors on Sunday to the rich and denies the same right to the other classes is certainly wrong.

Tonight is the night for star gazers. The period of falling stars lasts from the 10th to the 15th of November. If the sky is clear there will be star gazers out tonight.

The Columbia City Mail appeared last week with a twelve page edition giving a review of that thriving city's busy industries. The Mail is edited by J. C. Wingent and is a live local newspaper and well edited.

There are 1,400 names on the rolls of the soldiers' home at Marion, and the managers have given instructions that no more be received, as the home is crowded to its fullest capacity. Some of the rejected applicants have been received in the Grant county infirmary.

The secretary of state has refused to incorporate the Roby Athletic club under the laws of Indiana. The articles received Saturday have been returned to the club. It was held that the organization could not have legal existence under the McHugh law, as it is to be conducted for profit, while the articles did not give the amount of capital.

Stripped of all the sentimentality which many throw around its discussion and allow it to warp their opinions, the Hawaiian question resolves itself down to this: If we have wrongfully interfered in the affairs of a foreign power, and have overthrown its government, it is our duty to repair the wrong, whether that government were a republic or a despotism.

Men who seek a remedy for hard times by voting "agin the government," without understanding or considering what may have caused the hard times, are of a class quite numerous enough in most of our states to have reversed the attitude of parties at a time like this. If they should happen to be prospering at this time next year they will be quite capable of voting on the other side again without caring for a reason.

The great body of the American people are sincerely and earnestly patriotic. They differ in their ideas of government, but each side believes that its ideas are the best for all, and they uphold them for no other reason. And their judgment, the judgment of the whole body, though not always infallible, is in the long run sound and right. Even when we think the majority has shifted to the wrong side, we may always feel sure that the country can take care of itself.

The republican pluralities at the last elections approximate these figures: In Iowa, 40,000; in Ohio, 80,000; in Pennsylvania, 120,000; in Massachusetts, 38,000; in New York, on the head of the ticket, 73,000, and on the rest of the ticket 40,000, carrying with it both branches of the general assembly. New Jersey is republican from top to bottom by a sufficient plurality. In Nebraska the plurality over the populists is about 4,000. The democratic majority in Virginia is 50,000 and in Kentucky it is about the same as usual.

Steps Toward Nationalism.

The long and disastrous coal strike in England, lasting three months and paralyzing many trades, has naturally given rise to plans for the prevention of such strikes in future. The Socialist party of course has its panacea, which is that the state shall buy up all the coal mines of Great Britain and operate them. Numbers of the Radical party have gone over to the Socialists on this question, arguing that the coal raising interests of the country are too important and involve too many other industries to allow them longer to be controlled by private persons.

Sir George Elliot is a self made Briton. When a boy he was a common miner in the coalpits. He was brainy and ambitious, however, and he raised himself step by step, till he became very rich and a baronet. Sir George's plan for preventing coal strikes is to merge all the coal mine ownerships into one great trust, worth, say, $550,000,000. The mines of the kingdom could be bought for that, he says. This huge corporation should be managed on a semi co-operative basis by directors who looked at once to the best interests of employers and employees. The price of coal should be fixed, and when once made should not be advanced except with the approbation of the government, and then all, stockholder, workman and consumer, should share in the profits accruing.

In Switzerland, which an eminent British writer declares to be the best governed country on the globe, the drift toward state socialism is still more marked. The initiative has been resorted to to compel the national legislature to enact laws providing work for every citizen. The signers of the initiative demand that the congress shall make the hours of labor shorter so as to give employment to more workmen. That is one of the demands. Another is the passage of laws establishing government workshops. Besides that the initiative also calls on the government to found and manage public labor bureaus on its own account, and also to provide for compulsory arbitration in labor disputes.

A Growling Old Lion.

If Louis Kossuth lives until the 27th of next April he will be 92 years old. On the occasion of his ninety-first birthday he wrote in answer to a letter of congratulation, "It will be a blessing for me if your congratulations are the last I receive, as I sincerely hope they may be." Such a reply as that would tend to damp the ardor of a man's most enthusiastic admirers.

The fact is that for 40 years this old lion has done nothing but sit and growl. He was not an old lion when the revolt of Hungary against the Austrian government finally failed. He was young then, and no foreigner who ever visited the United States was ever made so much of a lion of, except Lafayette, as Kossuth was. After the Hungarian revolution failed, many of his countrymen who had been with him accepted the order of things and began to work inside the Austrian empire for a prudence for Hungary that they had hoped to win outside of it.

The result of their patriotic efforts is that Hungary is today the most powerful portion of Austria-Hungary. The tail wags the dog. But Kossuth over and again refused election to the diet at Pesth, when he might have wrought far reaching reforms. He declined to do anything whatsoever for his country. Consequently he is today a soured, disappointed, not over agreeable old man, a burden to himself and no good to anybody else.

The Man Who Shot.

"A homeless wanderer, crazed with hunger and cold," is the man who shot the superintendent of the Postal Telegraph building in New York city. "My name's Bradley; I want work," he said to the superintendent. "Get out!" said the superintendent. Then Bradley shot.

He crouched behind a brick pile and shot desperately round after round at the policemen who went to capture him. It was not until he himself was severely wounded that the officers were able to take him. He was quite insane—now cursing, now crying and again roaring like a wild beast. Who was Bradley? He had been one of the sailors of the United States navy. He had been on board the flagship Trenton on that historic day of the great storm in Apia harbor, when the Trenton drifted down upon the Vandalia. When death seemed certain before all on both vessels, from 450 throats on board the Trenton rang out the gallant cry, "Three cheers for the Vandalia!"

As the vessels neared in that awful collision the Trenton's band played the "Star Spangled Banner," and it sounded above the lashing of the mad waves, above the roar of the tempest, till it reached the fainting heroes on the Vandalia and was echoed to the shore. He was one of the men that called across the raging waters that brave cheer for the Vandalia whom the American people have allowed to become crazed through starvation and whom the superintendent of a gang of laborers ordered to "get out" when he begged for work.

Shelving Old People.

They ought to be shelved. The world's verdict is a just one. When a man becomes cranky, bad tempered and sinks into a rut so that he cannot learn anything new, he ought to step down and out to give place to some one who can hustle and keep up with the times. When the brain tissues become so dried up and hardened that a new idea can by no means penetrate the understanding, then nobody has any more use for that brain. Its owner should take it and himself to the corner where they will be least in the way of the active young workers and lay both upon the shelf, only to wait and grumble till kindly death comes and takes them.

This world's work wants active, buoyant, hustling, good tempered persons, with souls fresh and young, ever desiring to learn some better way of doing things. All we can count on with absolute certainty is the fact of constant change—mostly for the better, one may hope. This life calls for only Workers.

Ever lending something new,
That which they have done but earnest
Of the things which they shall do.

So that only young people are wanted in the affairs of life. The youngest people are occasionally found 100 years old, and it is not at all uncommon to find young people 75 and 80 years of age.

New Uses For Aluminium.

Every widening of the field for aluminium is eagerly welcomed by the world. The only problem at present is the cost of the metal. It is at present 50 times that of the best steel. When the metallurgists succeed in making it as cheaply as steel, there will be such a revolution in civilization that, as one enthusiast has remarked, we shall enter on the age of aluminium.

When that day comes, all water mains, pipes, faucets, gutter spouts and roofs will be made of this metal. It has been found that it will not tarnish even in the dirtiest of soft coal cities. It is one third as heavy as copper. All domestic utensils will be fashioned from it, since it neither rusts, poisons nor tarnishes. Baths will be constructed of this beautiful substance. Ships will be built of it or some of its alloys too. The speed of vessels today is greatly retarded by the immense weight of the iron and steel of which they are constructed. If some alloy of aluminium shall be discovered, as there certainly will be, of which vessels can be made, our ocean steamers will skim across the water as on wings at a rate which would daze and stun the imagination today. Enormous advances all along the line of a cleanly, healthy and prosperous civilization will be made when aluminium has been subdued by man.

Hon. David B. Hill seems in earnest about reforming the poky ways of the United States senate. He has already introduced into that venerable body the amendment to the rules which raised such a storm in the house two years ago—the one providing that when a member is in the chamber in plain sight he shall be counted as present whether he answers to his name at roll call or not.

MONROEVILLE NEWS.

An Interesting Budget of Items From That Busy Town.

MONROEVILLE, Ind., Nov. 13.

The Pennsylvania company is fulfilling its agreement with the town board by placing an electric alarm bell at the dangerous Main street crossing.

Dr Van Buskirk, of Fort Wayne was summoned to this place to consult with Dr. Edwards in the case of J. W. Edwards little daughter, who is suffering from a scrofulous swelling of the face.

Sam Isenberger purchased the Howard meat market on South street, and proposes to keep one of the neatest shops in town.

Ex-auditor and now State Statistician Argo is pleasantly located in his beautiful mansion, on his Oak Grove farm. Mr. Argo formerly lived here, but of late was a citizen of Fort Wayne. His many friends welcome him back to his old home.

Walter Hood, of Harlan, Ind., will open a new meat market in the Heller building this week.

Miss Maggie Hoffman was surprised by her young friends last Friday evening, it being the anniversary of her birth. A sumptuous feast had been prepared by the young folks and all those present whiled away the hours to the merry notes of Keifer & Friedline's orchestry.

Dr. S. E. Mentzer is taking a course in medicine at the New York polytechnic institute, from which he will graduate. He will be absent about a year, during which time Dr. Louis Edwards will attend to his practice here.

Loyman Noyer, who managed the Oak Grove dairy for a number of years, resigned that position and moved into apartments with Charles Valentine.

Since the war against gambling dens has been inaugurated at this place, much surprise is shown as the work progresses in bringing the participants to light. Constable Bagby was in town again last week with warrants to arrest more of the faro wheel players, but failed to apprehend them. These dens of vice have been in operation day and night, and on the Sabbath as well, bringing misery and desolation in many homes, and the reformer has the thanks of the law-abiding citizens of Monroeville, regardless of the motives which prompted him in bringing the offenders to light.

The teachers of Madison and Monroe townships will hold a joint institute at this place next Saturday, providing the Monroeville school building can be obtained. The interest in institute work for the past three years, like that of the school here, has not been at par in the estimation of County Superintendent Young, and therefore he secured the consent of Trustee Hoffman, of Monroe, and Trustee Franke, of Madison, to make arrangements for joint meetings to revive the interest as of yore. The following subjects will be discussed. American Taxation; Apperception of Individual Notions, Work in Spelling for the First Four Years: Processes of G. C. D. and L. C. M. Grammar; Physiology; Motives in Disciplining Pupils; Study of the Home Regions. A number of recitations are set forth in the program.

We have been a recipient of a number of communications from non-resident stockholders of the Monroeville Oil, Gas and Fuel company enquiring relative to its doings and prospects. We wish to state that we are not interested in this infamous company and can give little information, even if we so desired. The fact that an attempt was made a year ago by a South street "snake house keeper" to "roast" us gives little evidence why we should be singled out as the one to intercede for them. They have subscribed and paid their shares and that is all the directors desired. Five wells were put down by the company at a cost of $6,000, and not a cent can ever be realized from them, as they are all failures, just as we predicted time and again. Our denunciation of the further undertaking after the completion of the first well, were not fancies, but facts based on information gathered from a tour through the Indiana and Ohio gas belt. We had visited the gas fields of Hartford and Muncie, Ind., Lima, Findlay and Fostoria, Ohio, and knew why we stated that there was no gas in paying quantities in or around Monroeville. Now that the gas project is over the leaders who fared well by it for two years are endeavoring to inaugurate some other movement by the way of enterprise, but the people here lost confidence in them, so much so that the mere mention of their names in connection with any undertaking of this kind will ruin it.

Hydrophobia.

Dogs transmit it through their teeth. Teeth should be kept free from virus. Use SOZODONT, keep the human teeth clean, and no damage can be done by the man who says to his girl, "I feel like eating you up, dearest."

A WASHINGTON cashier stole $26,000, repented to the extent of expressing sorrow and retaining the booty, and got a sentence of three years in the penitentiary. Had he stolen more the punishment would doubtless have been less, and had he stolen the entire bank his safety would have been assured and the respect of his fellow-citizens heaped upon him in smothering bounteousness.

A woman who can see. She's the woman who gets well. It's the woman who won't see and won't believe who has to suffer.

And it's needless. There's a medicine—a legitimate medicine—that's made to stop woman's suffering and cure woman's ailments. It's Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's purely vegetable and perfectly harmless—a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, imparting vigor and strength to the whole system. For periodical pains, weak back, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, and all "female complaints," it's a positive remedy. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

No other medicine for women is guaranteed, as this is. If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, the money paid for it is refunded. You pay only for the good you get. On these terms it's the cheapest.

THE PATHFINDER.

FREMONT'S DARING TRIPS ACROSS THE ROCKIES AND SIERRAS TO THE SEA.

He Defied the Warnings of Indians and Trappers and the Terrors of Mountains Buried In Snow Until a Southwest Pass Was Found to the Pacific.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association. Book rights reserved.]

FREMONT'S fame as a pathfinder came to him by great achievements simply. They were great for the time, if not great in results. Marvelous deeds are so quickly outdone that they lose their proper place in the chronology of events. Their true measure is to be taken by a glance backward—not forward.

In his very young manhood Fremont was in training for the life of an explorer. He was an assistant to the government engineers who reconnoitered the Cherokee country of Tennessee and the Carolinas in anticipation of war, and became at home in wild countries among border men and savages. He saw the untutored Indian in bloody frays endure slashing and stabbing from keen knife blades with the stoicism of schoolboys in snowball battles. What was wasted valor for them would be glorious courage when displayed by white men for a noble purpose. His outdoor life and exercise inured his body to exposure, while his application to technical problems fitted him to be a leader.

At 25 years of age he had ridden in a charge on a buffalo herd and fought mounted with enraged bulls in the crush of frantic, trampling horned beasts. At that age, in his earliest expeditions, he would select three or four men of his company and travel ahead among savages, taking the hardest route on the theory that possible disaster should be shared by the fewest number. When at Fort Laramie in his first expedition, in 1842, friendly Indians warned him not to set out across the hostile lands between the Platte and the Rockies.

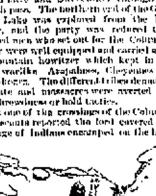

Their predictions, though well meant and apparently well founded, were ignored, and the expedition numbering but 26 men went ahead, meeting no hostiles but nearly perishing from starvation. The grasshoppers had stripped the country of forage and the buffalo had fled to other pastures. When the party reached Wind River mountains both men and animals were exhausted by hardships and want of food. But Fremont was unwilling to rest satisfied with a hasty glance over the region which gives birth to the four great rivers of the west—the Colorado, Columbia, Missouri and Platte.

The men subsisted wholly upon dried buffalo meat cooked in tallow. Hostile Blackfeet roamed the hills and guarded the passes. A palisade and breastwork was built in a dense grove and the men most in need of rest were left there, while the leader and fourteen of the hardiest, including Carson, the doughty guide, toiled up the mountain steeps. The lofty peaks were deceptive, and the bold travelers found the way barred by lakes which compelled them to make wide detours; huge bowlders barricaded the mountain slopes, and deep and impassable chasms yawned before them.

One by one the men and mules gave out and were left to rest and make their way back to camp. Five men only ascended the peak, clambering over frozen snow—although it was August—shod in moccasins so thin that the toes could be used in making firm footholds. On the 15th of the month Fremont and four companions hoisted the stars and stripes on the highest peak of Wind River mountains, 3,575 feet above their main camp, 2,780 feet above the lakes at the base of the range and 13,570 feet above the sea.

Numerous adventures followed and the party returned by the way of Fort Laramie to St. Louis, and Fremont was ordered to cross the Rockies and explore as far as the Pacific. With 39 men, he started in May, 1843, followed the emigrant trail across the Kansas, keeping south of Fort Laramie to the Platte and Sweetwater through the South pass. The northern end of the Great Salt Lake was explored from the Bear river, and the party was reduced to 25 picked men who set out for the Columbia. They were well equipped and carried along a mountain howitzer which kept in awe the warlike Arapahoes, Cheyennes and Shoshones. The different tribes demanded tribute and massacres were averted only by shrewdness or bold tactics.

At one of the crossings of the Columbia the scouts reported the ford covered by a village of Indians encamped on the bank.

"LIFE YET?"

The water was breast-deep, and the cavalcade galloped in with a recklessness that so astounded the savages that they made no attack. The cannon was dragged through under water. The party halted after crossing, put the gun in position on a line of battle, and the Indians made no attempt to seize the advantage.

The explorers traveled for weeks in the unknown regions of the Columbia and went so far north as to catch sight of the snow covered peaks of Washington. Late in November they set out on the return, expecting to cross from the lower Columbia to the upper Colorado and then east to the Arkansas. Two months of hard journeying brought them to the Salmon Trout river, on the eastern slopes of the Sierras in the latitude of San Francisco. Deep snows and extreme cold had forced them into the temperate clime of the Great Basin.

An examination of the horses showed that they could not hold out to recross the Rocky mountains eastward, and in spite of the most terrible warnings of the Indians, Fremont decided to break through the Sierras to the valley of the Sacramento in the hope of finding Captain Sutter's famous Mexican settlement. The Indians met spoke in unknown tongues, and communication with them was by signs. The tribes were at war with one another, and those impressed or hired as guides would not go above a day's journey from their villages. The only food to be obtained from them was pine nuts, and as the voyageurs were living chiefly on peas the cravings of hunger added to their distress.

In the mountain passes the snow was four feet deep. Kit Carson had crossed the Sierras to Sutter's fort 15 years previous, and he talked hopefully to the men in favor of Captain Fremont's project, helping to maintain courage and discipline in the band. Their hardships equaled those of the severest arctic journeys. The killing of a pet dog provided a feast for the whole camp. It snowed continuously for days at a time. Roads were broken by men on horseback in light marching order, passing back and forth until a hard bed was made for the weak or heavily burdened men and animals. Sometimes horses broke through and fell, half buried in snow. Then, with shovels and mauls, the men labored until a stretch of hard track had been beaten.

In the middle of February the expedition passed the crest of the Sierras. The thermometer was below zero except when the sun shone. Then the snow melted into pools and streams and quickly froze as the sun's rays were cut off. The animals nearly famished. Their only sustenance was wild grass. The night was usually passed in green gullies and ravines, where the starving beasts fed all night while the men rested. It became a question of grass or death for all hands. Carson, the indefatigable scout, who traveled on ahead, announced his discovery of green feeding places with the joyous cry, "Life yet, life yet; I have found a hillside sprinkled with grass."

The drift animals which fell exhausted were butchered for food. Fremont consented to every sacrifice to save the lives of his men, exacting the pledge, however, that in the worst straits they would not resort to cannibalism. Several men were crazed and wandered from the route.

On the 6th of March the expedition reached Sutter's, on the Sacramento. In crossing the Sierras 33 horses and mules had perished and one man was missing.

Sutter's mammoth farm was capable of entertaining the whole company and refitting the expedition for return. In March, 1844, Fremont resumed the homeward journey by passing southward and recrossing the Sierra Nevada above Los Angeles. Great Salt Lake was again reached in May, after an absence of eight months. During that time the expedition had traveled 3,500 miles, had endured the severities of winter in Oregon and northern California and thoroughly explored the basin between the Rockies and the Sierras.

FREMONT RIDING DOWN THE KLAMATH WAR KING.

In the spring of 1845 Fremont started with his third and last government expedition. Many of his old companions joined him, among them Godey and Carson, the noted scouts. Carson abandoned his valuable ranch on the Arkansas when the column reached there and fell into line, such was the respect he bore to the young "tenderfoot" explorer. The party numbered 60 when it reached Salt Lake. From there it crossed the desert to the foot of the Sierras. It was the dead of winter, and the men and animals were too exhausted to cross the mountains. Fremont, with 15 picked men, made the trip to Sutter's farm in 10 days, and returned with supplies to succor the main party, but it had moved southward to a warmer region and reached the California settlements.

Fremont immediately placed himself under the orders of Commodore Stockton and engaged in the conquest of California. He was court martialed for a technical disobedience of orders and resigned his commission to engage in a fourth expedition on his own hook. His aim was to discover a feasible route to California for travel all the year round. The voyageurs numbered 33. They crossed the country from Santa Fe to the Sierras through the lands of the fiery Comanches and Apaches, but were stopped by the lofty mountains buried in snow.

The guide pretended to have lost his way and conducted the column to the highest peaks. One-third of the men and horses perished, and the survivors, reduced to the extremity of subsisting on human flesh, fell back to Santa Fe. Still undaunted, Fremont gathered up 30 more men, and in the spring of 1849 found a good pass to Southern California. Fremont was the real leader and master of the band, though he was a boy beside some of them. His career as an explorer ended at the age of 35. The wild party which rode into Monterey on his third expedition was described by a British seaman, who chanced to be in port, as follows:

"Fremont rode ahead—a spare, active looking man. He was dressed in blouse and leggings and wore a felt hat. After him came five Delaware Indians who were his bodyguard through all his wanderings. The rest, many of them blacker than Indians, rode two and two, the rifle held by one hand across the pommel of the saddle. The dress of these men was principally a long, loose coat of deerskin tied with thongs in front; trousers of the same of their own manufacture. They are allowed no liquor, and the discipline is very strict."

On the march, with scouts ahead and on the flanks, with an advance and rear guard, and the noncombatants, pack animals, baggage and horned cattle in the center, the column looked rather like a wandering tribe in Asia than a scientific expedition hailing from civilized states.

When it came to battle, Fremont was a hero. In a fight with the Klamaths, Carson's rifle missed fire just as his Indian opponent was drawing his bow. Fremont fired, but missed also. Then he spurred his horse and jumped him upon the Indian, throwing him over and causing the arrow to fly wild. The savage was dispatched with a war club, and the arrows in his quiver were found to be steel-tipped and poisoned. Fremont's quick daring saved Carson from a terrible death. GEORGE L. KILMER.

He Looked Suspicious.

A New York policeman arrested a man the other night for looking mysterious. He took his victim to a police station where search revealed that the person was wearing three suits of underclothing, two pairs of socks, two hats, three suits of clothes, with a silk handkerchief in the pocket of each suit. Two overcoats were slung over his arm and in his hand he carried several pairs of gloves. The man was detained while the police looked up the owner of the clothes.—Exchange.

An Exception.

Miss Millott—Is it true that you bicycle riders soon get attached to your machines?

Mr. Wheeler—It hasn't worked that way with me yet. I can fall off my machine without the least trouble.—Indianapolis Journal.

Vivid.

Freddy—The sea is awful rough today, mamma.

Mamma—Are the billows rolling high?

Freddy—Yes, indeed, they are, and they are rolling up the beach like a lot of seidlitz powders.—Harper's Young People.

Cinched.

In the depth and sanctity of her passion she was forgetful that he must certainly change his collar upon the morn, if she persisted thus in twining her arms about his neck.

"Francois," she cooed, "you remember the evening you asked me to be your wife?"

"Yes, Felice."

"Are you sure, Francois," she asked again, "that the love you then declared was for me alone?"

"I am sure, Felice," replied he solemnly, as befitted the nature of their sacred compact. "I've paid a lawyer $10 to look into your supposed equity, and I am very sure."

After that she pressed the business a second time, and presently he took his departure.—Truth.

The Grocer's Little Joke.

Girl (in the service of the stingy wife of the colonel, to grocer)—One penn'orth of sugar, one penn'orth of coffee and a ha'porth of cinnamon.

Grocer (handing her the parcel)—There's the lot. You're having a family party this evening, I suppose?—Fliegende.

A Temporary Inconvenience.

Eastern Tourist—Waiter, bring me some sugar, please.

Waiter—There ain't but three lumps in the house, cap. You kin have 'em as soon as them gents gits through with 'em. They've got 'em marked, and they're shakin dice with 'em.—Puck.

They Come High.

"Rambo," said Baldwin, "don't you find that a champagne drunk gives you as big a head the next day as a plain whisky drunk?"

"Yes," answered Rambo, "but it's something of a luxury to have a $12 headache."—Chicago Tribune.

Encouraging an Author.

Manuscript Reader—Here is a manuscript from some writer I never heard of.

Great Magazine Editor—Well, no use discouraging the poor fellow. Kick it around the floor, so it will look as if it had been carefully read, and send it back.—New York Weekly.

A LIMITED HONEYMOON.

A Would Be Bridegroom Declares His Prospective Plans.

His back was humped up, his knees badly sprung, and there was a squeak in his voice as he fondly smoothed down his long goatee and inquired:

"Stranger, could you tell that I'd jest paid 50 cents to hev these whiskers dyed? Jest stand off and squint at 'em and gimme an honest answer."

"Yes, I could tell that they had been dyed," I replied.

"So could I, but that's all right. Got my ha'r dyed at the same time. How old would you take me to be?"

"Well, about 50."

"That was my object—to deceive the public in general and the Widder Spicer in pertickler. I'm 72 years old."

"You have an object then?" I asked.

"I hev. I'm goin to git married."

"No?"

"That is, if the widder fills the bill. I'm goin down to Skinnersville today to see her. If she fills the bill, she's my jaybird to love and cherish; if she don't, she's somebody else's jaybird. What d'ye think of an old chap of 72 shinin up to a widder of 25?"

"Such matches generally bring trouble."

"Yes, I s'pose they do, and the old chaps are generally to blame for it. I left all the children cryin around, and the last thing my oldest gal said was that I'd be financially wrecked in three months. All of 'em figger that the widder is after my money and that she'll make the dollars fly like feathers."

"But you don't think so?"

"Not this evenin, stranger. When a widder picks this old mossback up for a flat, she's bound to git left. I had a farm, but I've put it outer my hands. I had a hired gal doin the work, but I've let her go. I had three cows to milk, and I've bought two more."

"The widow will have plenty of work, eh?"

"More'n a hundred pounds of carpet rags waitin to be sewed," whispered the old man as he drew down his eye. "Seven of us to cook, wash and mend fur. Cellar hain't bin whitewashed fur three years, and all the house has got to be cleaned. I've throwed the well pump away and gone back to a rope and bucket, and it's comin on time to dry pumpkins, smoke meat and pick the geese."

"She won't have much of a honeymoon," I suggested.

"Bridal tower is goin to be just eight miles long!" he said as he winked the other eye. "I've got it all planned, and the cost is $1.50. I've already bought her 10 yards of caliker and a 75 pair of shoes, and she can't hev no excuse to run to the store fur a year. The only money I shall hev ale ni the house is this 10 cent piece with a hole in it. Stranger, look me all over as I turn around."

"What's the idea?"

"To see if any flies hev lit on me while we've bin talkin."

"No, I don't see any."

"I didn't much 'spect you would. That wasn't any on me when I left home, though I'm 72 years old, and thar won't be any on me when I stand before that widder and offer her my heart and hand. Think of them children a-takin on because that widder is goin to wreck me inside of three months, and then think of the widder tryin it on me! Say, stranger."

"Well?"

"Jest one word more. I've got seven hogs in the pen up home, and I'll bet the half of 'em agin a dollar that instead of the widder wreckin me I'll become her last shillin to pay for gettin my ha'r and whiskers dyed up an to fix the preacher who marries us. The children don't know me. I'm acquirin a wife, hired man, hired gal, sewin woman and a mother fur 'em all combined in one, and I don't actually believe the hull expense will amount to over $3. Thar is moss in the woods around here, stranger, but none growin on my spinal column. Thar is flies a-flyin about this depot, but you jest notice that none of 'em stop to light on the undersigned!"—Detroit Free Press.

But It Isn't Always Heard.

When a man talks in a telephone, what he says goes.—Buffalo Courier.

I had a severe attack of catarrh and became so deaf I could not hear common conversation. I suffered terribly from roaring in my head. I procured a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, and in three weeks could hear as well as I ever could, and now I can say to all who are afflicted with the worst of diseases, catarrh, take Ely's Cream Balm and be cured. It is worth $1,000 to any man, woman or child suffering from catarrh. A. E. Newman, Grayling, Mich.

HUNTING WORK.

Hundreds of Men Call at the Shops Every Day.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention of the People About the Railway Centers.

As the winter approaches the number of unemployed men appear to increase. This is noticeable about the railway and the Bass shops, where hundreds of laborers apply daily for work. The most of the applicants are strangers, who losing their positions at home, start out to seek employment elsewhere, only to find that there is no demand for their services. One poor follow who called at the Wabash shops this morning said that he left Garrett City last May and had traveled to California and back, but could find no work anywhere. He was out of money and weakened from exposure and want of food. General Foreman Mudd took the poor fellow in charge and gave him the first meal he had eaten in forty-eight hours. Most of Fort Wayne's laborers have been employed steadily and there is still work for them. In this respect this city is more fortunate than any other in the central states.

BRIEF MENTION.

A. Rauner, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, is sick and off duty.

James H. Jogue, traveling passenger agent of the West Shore road, was in the city yesterday.

Machinist M. J. Lee, of the Pittsburg, is absent from the shop on account of sickness.

C. Laible, an employe of the Pittsburg shops, car department, is off duty on account of sickness.

A scheme for the establishment of a co-operative machine company is being discussed at Indianapolis.

Fred Myers, who was sick two weeks, resumed his duties in the Pittsburg planing mills this morning.

Fred Hoveshire has recovered from a week's sickness. He is an employe of the Rhinesmith & Simonson factory.

Boilermaker Henry Geerken went to Upper Sandusky this morning to repair a water station boiler for the Pennsylvania company.

Fred Dickmeyer, who had a hand injured some time ago, returned to his duties in the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this morning.

Samuel Elliott, a pattern maker, who quit the service of the electric light company last July, will resume his old position tomorrow.

The Ohio Falls Car Works company is putting up additional buildings, preparatory to better handling its business when times improve.

The Lake Erie and Western still complains of light traffic in lumber, though last week showed an improvement over the preceding week.

Jacob Gretzmeyer has returned to his work in the electric light works after a few days' absence. John Gribbins, another employe, is taking a vacation.

Wabash engine 211, which hauls the local freight train, is receiving attention in the shops today. Yesterday the engine backed into some cars and damaged her tender.

Machinist John Offner, of the Wabash shops, had the misfortune yesterday to cut the third finger of his right hand badly. He is still working, though in a crippled condition.

One day last week Panhandle engine 120, hauling a combination car, two coaches, a Pullman sleeper and a Pullman chair car, made a run of 105 miles, including seven stops, in 113 minutes.

Passenger engine No. 70, running between this city and Crestline, broke down while hauling the Keystone express yesterday. She went into the shops for a new set of flues this morning.

Fred Brinkman has returned from the country, where he was called a few days ago by the serious illness of his sister. The lady is improving. Mr. Brinkman works in the Pittsburg planing mills.

A new track has been completed at La Crosse, Ind., which connects the Monon, the Panhandle and the Chicago and West Michigan roads, and will prove a great convenience in the transfer of business.

W. H. Marshall, of Delphos, Ohio, is visiting Thomas Sellars, of Rhinesmith & Simonson's factory. Mr. Marshall formerly resided in this city and was employed in the Pittsburg shops. He is a blacksmith.

J. G. Crockett, who for twenty-five years has been the master mechanic of the Chicago and Rock Island lines in Iowa, died last Friday at Fort Smith, Ark., where he was sojourning for the benefit of his health.

Charles Hyde, a son of Robert Hyde, a locomotive engineer on the Evansville and Terre Haute, has invented an air brake which, it is claimed, prevents accidents from losing control of the brake by the engineer.

This morning John Ross, Pennsylvania ticket agent, received a handsomely bound illustrated book, entitled "Float Heads" by Ida Waugh. The book was a present from the Hartford Accident Insurance company, and was given in recognition of Mr. Ross' valuable services as their agent at the Pittsburg depot, he having written over 209 insurance policies during the month of October.

Mr. and Mrs. William Getting, of this city, are the guests of the lady's brothers, Charles and William Gwick, in Nebraska. All the gentlemen named are now in the wilds of Stewart county, Neb., hunting antelope.

Next Thursday THE SENTINEL will be able to tell its readers of the fate of the popular "Keystone" and "Columbia" express trains, on the Pittsburg road, as on that day the new schedule will be completed and ready for publication.

President Stuyvesant Fish, of the Illinois Central, accompanied by Robert T. Lincoln, late United States minister to England, and a half dozen other prominent men, are on a pleasure tour south, traveling in President Fish's private car.

The Muncie Daily Times says: "Will Rhoads, a train dispatcher on the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville railway, has resigned his position and is now in charge of the north local. Hank Shideler is filling the vacancy caused by Mr. Rhoads' resignation."

Indianapolis papers report an increase in the movement of freights. There is a large movement of empty cars westward, indicating that the roads are getting ready to move the cotton, corn and hog crops when they are ready for market.

Walter T. Starr, a fireman on a locomotive on the Panhandle, was in a collision last May, near Youngstown. Seeing a collision unavoidable, he jumped from the footboard and received injuries which will cripple him for life. Now he sues the company for $30,000.

Today the Electric Light company commenced shipping the machinery for a complete electric light plant at Coal City, Ill. Included in the shipments are a 650-light alternating dynamo, and a 40-light Wood arc dynamo. The company also sent a 750 light alternating dynamo to Bowling Green, Ky.

Detective Sollitt, of the Wabash railroad, denies that an attempt was recently made to wreck a train on the Wabash, west of the island bridge, in Logansport, by wedging a huge boulder between the ties. The stone rolled down an embankment and lodged on the track of its own gravity. The pilot of an engine was broken by the casualty.

Grand Master Sargent, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, is being congratulated over the manner he adjusted the grievances of the Mobile and Ohio trainmen, who were on the eve of striking. Mr. Sargent is becoming as famous for adjusting such affairs as Grand Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, both opposing strikes to adjust such difficulties.

After the 12th inst. Nickel Plate trains Nos. 3 and 4, due here at 1:45 p. m. will not run on Sunday. This is the only change in the running of Nickel Plate trains announced so far. Business is fairly good on the road and the tendency is towards improvement. As long as travel keeps up to the present standard the through trains, Nos. 1, 2, 5 and 6 will continue in service.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida street, San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. Free trial bottles at Dreier Bro's and Co drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Electric Bitters.

CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

In Paine's Celery Compound is New Life and Energy.

Inspector Samuel D. Conway is Permanently Cured.

Had Tried Doctors and All Other Remedies Without Any Relief.

Paine's celery compound gives new life and energy to the system.

It is the one true specific for the cure of rheumatism.

It abundantly supplies the materials demanded by the blood and nerves. It is the best possible restorer for elderly people. The period beyond middle life is the most precious part of life. It was meant to be calm, ripe, and strong. At 60 one should be like well-seasoned timber. To be feeble and weak is not natural, for nature's tendency is toward health. Weakness and pain simply show the need of better food for the nerves and blood.

Says Samuel D. Conway, of St. Louis: "I am 61 years old. I have resided in St. Louis 27 years, and all of this time, with the exception of three years, I have served in the engineers' department as inspector and overseer.

"Last winter I contracted rheumatism and was laid up. I tried all remedies and doctors, but all failed until I struck Paine's celery compound, which has made a permanent cure of my case. I have recommended it to many, and they have used it with the same result.

"My case was an exception to most others from the fact that sewers are most always built on low ground and the inspector is exposed to the water and earth excavated, which has a tendency to fill the system with malaria."

Mr. Conway is one of the thousands whose rheumatism has been cured by Paine's celery compound.

The Great Tariff Question.

The tariff, at best, is a deceptive scheme to avoid direct taxation. It involves the "ways and means" by which money may be forthcoming to provide for current expenses and "appropriations;" especially the latter. Its warmest friends must admit that this law ought to be so adjusted as to operate in favor of the necessaries of life and against the luxuries or worse than foolish habits of the people to which so many are addicted. For example, all kinds of wholesome food, moderately expensive clothing and such articles as the average man in moderate circumstances must have for the necessary comforts of himself and family. On all such things the tariff should be light and not burdensome. On the other hand, silks, satins, fine goods and "princely livings," including all unnecessary things, such as "liquors and cigars," ought to pay a heavy tariff. This would encourage sobriety, economy and good citizenship, and would operate against extravagance, prodigality and licentiousness, and these objects should be primary with all our legislators, both state and national.

The foregoing is all there is to the question when "boiled down," and that is what editors mostly admire.

INTERESTING CHAT ABOUT SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

An Improved Concentrator for Use in Milling Metals—A New Wheel for Velocipedes — Convenient Reading Stand—Chemical Discoveries.

An Improved Concentrator.

This is an apparatus of simple and durable construction, designed to save the precious metals and the floured quicksilver passing with the tailings discharged from the mill. At the upper end of a slightly inclined table of suitable length is a receiving tank or receptacle having in its front side grates through which the tailings are discharged into channels on the top of the table, each channel having its bottom covered in the upper part with a coarse mesh fabric, such as jute, a fabric of finer mesh, such as canvas, being used near the lower end of the table. At the lower end of each channel are two valved apertures leading into two transverse channels, the first one of which discharges into a tank connected by overflows with a series of tanks, the last one of which discharges into a waste chute. The second transverse channel discharges into a tank for receiving the lighter second grade concentrates. At the lower end of the table is a tailing box, a chute from which carries off the refuse sand and water. In front of the receiving box, near the upper end of the table, is a water distributing box, supplied from any suitable source, and having gates through which the water is permitted to flow as desired into the respective channels. In operation, the tailings are allowed to flow down the channels until they are well distributed over the table, when the gates of the water box are opened one at a time and sufficient water passed through to carry off the sand only, the attendant sweeping the channel for a portion of its length with an ordinary mill broom. The valve of the lower traverse channel is then opened, the water supply increased and the sweeping resumed, when the lighter or second class concentrates are carried off to their tank, the finer fabric at the lower end of the table not detaining them. The valve communicating with this tank being closed, and the other one opened, the sweeping is continued and the heavier concentrates are carried in the same way to the first of the series of overflow tanks, each channel being swept in a similar manner.

French Railroads.

The new plan for railroads brought forward in France is the subject of much comment. The system aims to combine the features of greatest value in electric and steam motors for railway lines—a system which, as claimed in the account given, can be adopted anywhere without change of track or rolling stock. The electric current is to drive the wheels, but is not to be conveyed from stationary machines along the line, and is generated on the train, the locomotive being simply a travelling electric plant. A steam engine at the rear of the locomotive works the generating dynamo, this furnishing current to a small motor placed on each axle of the locomotive, and, also, when it is desirable to extend the system further, to a motor on each axle of the cars. The absurdity of converting the steam into electricity before using the power is declared to be only apparent, and the double loss in thus using the energy of the fuel is more than offset by the gain in applying rotary power direct to the axles, avoiding slipping of the rails, and making unnecessary the connecting rods, cranks and wheels, whose jar and friction absorb a great part of the motive force. The new locomotive is said to give exact regulation of power and an increase of speed per hour, 50 to 62 miles, without change of roadbed.

An Improved Wheel for Velocipedes, Etc.

The illustration represents, in perspective and cross section, a wheel designed to be strong and durable while also well adapted to promote easy riding. The improvement has been patented by Jules Rousset of Paris, France. The rim of the wheel consists of two side plates held a proper distance apart by short bolts or rods, and inclosing between their outer edges a band or tire of double T shape, which may be of either the cushion or pneumatic type. This tire is preferably formed in sections to facilitate repairs and the substitution of new sections. Rods surrounded by spiral springs and having a sliding connection with the outer rim are also connected with the plates of an internal concentric rim through sleeves riveted upon the inside of the latter, to allow for a limited degree of bending or compression upon the external rim. The metal spokes are each formed of a pair of rods secured at their inner ends to the hub in the ordinary manner, but their connection with the inner rim is through oppositely threaded sleeves or nuts, operating as turnbuckles, in the opposite ends of which are screwed short rods or stems connected with the rim, whereby the spokes may be readily tightened by turning the sleeve.

Marine Engines for Land Service.

An interesting departure in engineering is the introduction of marine engines for land service, and the plan is commended by so good an authority as the Age of Steel. One of the great electric illuminating companies, it appears, has adopted them in its work, and concerning their economy in respect to space and power it is reported that the land engine takes up some ten times as much space as a marine engine and the marine quadruple-expansion engine has ten times the heating surface of the land engine. Further, the new quadruplex two-crank expansion engine is twice as powerful as the triple-expansion three-crank engine, occupies also 30 per cent less room, and carries regularly 210 pounds of steam; the land engine carries only 80 or 90 pounds of steam, and gets one horse-power out of from four to ten pounds of anthracite coal, while the quadruple-expansion marine engine develops one horse-power out of one and a quarter pounds of Welsh coal, that is according to these data, the land engine requires from two to four times as much coal as the marine engine to produce the same power.

Waterproofing Cotton.

The processes commonly resorted to for imparting a waterproof quality to cotton cloth have proved only reasonably successful, besides being somewhat complicated and troublesome. The latest and most effective method, as recently described, is claimed to be free from the objections heretofore encountered and consists, mainly, in first drying the fabric thoroughly in a dry heat and then spreading it evenly over a smooth surface. With a brush this is painted over with a thin coat of boiled oil, which, after having become perfectly dry, is treated to a second coat—and a third if necessary—plenty of time being allowed between each for the effect of the operation on the fabric to become perfect. After the last coat has been applied, if the surface remains sticky, a mixture of one-fourth pound of shellac to a pint of water gently heated until near the boiling point, adding to this a small quantity of liquid ammonia, is painted over the surface. For a yellow waterproof, yellow ochre is employed, and for a black cloth lampblack is found serviceable. The coloring matter, it is said, can be used in mixture with the shellac.

A Convenient Reading Stand.

The improved stand shown in the illustration has two reading desks—the top one readily adjustable to hold a book inclined in any desired direction, either upward or downward, to accommodate one reclining on a sofa or sitting upright, while the other desk may be used to hold a reference volume, or for writing, as may be convenient when a consultation is being held. The stand also supports, lower down upon its standard, a case or rack for the reception of books and magazines, and a novel form of dictionary holder, the dotted lines in the illustration representing the dictionary in closed position in the holder. By pulling up on a handle of the holder it rises and opens out to hold the dictionary in position for reference as shown in full lines, the book being closed and returned to its place at the side of the standard with equal facility. At the upper end of the standard is a table which may be used to support a lamp, and the two reading desks are supported by brackets sliding upon the standard and readily adjustable at any desired height thereon. Upon an extension of the upper bracket is a special construction of clamping and adjusting mechanism whereby a book may be readily held open, in the most convenient position for perusal, whether one is standing, sitting or lying down. Either one of the desks may be adjusted independently of the other.

Preserving Pictures.

The preservation of pictures has now become in London, it would seem, as the result of some very ingenious experiments, a regular scientific proceeding, if the accounts given are to be relied upon. It is simply placing the surface of the picture, be it of canvas or paper, in a vacuum, thus protecting it from the usual atmospheric action which is so deteriorating. In carrying out this plan the picture is enclosed in a metal frame or case, covering the back and sides, and projecting from the sides like an ordinary frame. In the edges of this case a plate of glass is inserted, just as in an ordinary frame, and hermetically sealed to the metal. The air is then withdrawn from between the surface of the picture and the glass, and thus the picture is in a vacuum. It is asserted that the effect of this plan is to completely protect pictures from the action of dampness, air, gases and other causes that operate to destroy paintings exposed or framed in the ordinary way.

Women Whist Players.

San Francisco women excel in whist playing. There is probably no city in the country where the game is so well played by so many women as in the California metropolis. At the recent whist congress held there women were present for the first time as members of various clubs, and a woman, Mrs. Henry Krebs of the San Francisco Whist club, was elected assistant secretary of the congress. One of the most prominent male whist clubs has a weekly "ladies' night," to which all lady players are welcome.

Princess Maud.

No one among the younger members of the English royal family takes a greater delight in assuming an alias than Princess Maud of Wales, who, when she has finished her stay in Scotland, is hoping to pay her annual visit to her late governess, now married and living in Devonshire. When she goes there she insists upon being called "Miss Mills," and upon being treated as a member of the family. She will have no ceremony of any kind.

THE Vigilant has won the great international yacht race, and the America's cup remains in the custody of the New York Yacht Club. This has been the most determined challenge for its recovery since the yacht America carried it away from England in 1851. American skill in shipbuilding and superiority in the art of navigation have been demonstrated in this great race. Neither the peculiar winds nor the power of the waves in American waters, nor both combined, produced this result. It was accomplished by greater success in naval architecture and by the excellence of seamanship. It is said that Lord Dunraven will build another yacht to succeed the Valkyrie and will try it again next year. He should not fail to return. He has made a manly trial and need not be discouraged by a single defeat.

IN the matter of divorce suits there is a sharp but friendly rivalry among members of the dramatic, baseball and prizefighting professions. None of them dares aspire to the title of artist until he or she shall have flung out for public airing a bundle of dirty domestic linen.

BOOKS LIKE THE ABOVE.

These Books Cannot be Obtained at Less Than the Wholesale Price in Any Other Way Than as Described Below.

WE take pleasure in announcing to our readers that we have made a contract whereby we can furnish them with standard books at absolutely less than wholesale prices. The books which we offer each week are by world famous writers and are printed from absolutely new type especially made for these works. The books are Bound by an Entirely New Process which does away with the old style of thread or wire binding. Each leaf is bound into the book separately and amalgamated with the whole, allowing the book to Lie Perfectly Flat when open, giving ease and comfort to the reader.

The following is an illustration of the new process perfect binding machine which does this work and the only machines in existence are owned and controlled by the publishers of these books.

This machine not only binds books without thread or wire but puts a cover on each book. It takes loose parts of the book and delivers the complete work bound at a rate of 1200 an hour.

Each week we will announce a new book in the following space. If you do not care for the work mentioned, save your coupons so we will be sure to announce books which you will not fail to order. We change date each issue.

No visitors will be admitted at the home for feeble minded youths for several weeks on account of the fact that two of the children of Superintendent Johnson have slight attacks of scarlet fever.

The Bluffton News of yesterday says: "E. F. Philley and family, guests of T. J. McDowell and wife, returned to Fort Wayne this morning.—Will Engeler spent Sunday with his parents at Vera Cruz, returning this morning to Fort Wayne, where he is working."

A Fourth street girl hired a horse and buggy of Poirson's livery stable, Sunday night, and hitching it to a post let the horse stand out in the rain and cold for several hours. The animal was taken to a barn by Policeman Richter and the Humane society is after the girl.

The meeting of the residents of the Tenth ward held in the city engineer's office last night resulted in an amicable settlement in the matter of the extra assessment of property holders in regard to the deficit for the payment of the Tenth ward sewer. The property holders agreed to pay the extra amount after the circumstances had been fully explained.

A young man who claimed to be a Hebrew worked a forged letter to a good advantage upon some of our prominent Hebrew business men. The young man was a stranger in Fort Wayne and represented that he was greatly in need of funds. He produced a letter said to have been written by Louis Fox and signed with that gentleman's name. The latter requested the business men to do all they could for the bearer, as he was a worthy young man. In this manner the stranger raised $18 or $19. He claimed to be a baker by trade. Mr. Fox was informed of the imposition and at once pronounced the letter a forgery.

Attention is called to the local advertisement of Henry Rust, in another column of this issue.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Third Presbyterian church will hold their regular monthly meeting Friday afternoon in the church parlors.

Word has reached this city that Tom Sullivan, formerly transfer agent of this city, died at San Antonio, Texas, November 9, of consumption. He leaves and insurance of $5,000 to his wife.

Christian Rehm, a well known German citizen, died at his home, No. 247 West Washington street, about 11 o'clock last night. The cause of his death was old age, he being seventy-four years of age. He leaves a wife but no children. The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Emanuel Lutheran church.

Mayor Zollinger has instructed Marshal Franke to inform the Sportsmen's Emporium on Main street that they must not carry a stock of gun powder larger than that allowed by ordinance. It was reported that there was much powder stored in the place during the time of the fire at the Aldine. An explosion would have probably killed some one.

The people of the Salem Reformed church, on Clinton street near the Temple, are working hard for their fair which opens soon. The gentlemen's committee is composed of the following gentlemen: Rev. Dr. Kuhling, T. Borger, Peter Hensel and John Schwabe. The ladies' committee is composed of Mesdames Haller, Vogel, Hartung, Hill and Kreizinger.

Rev. Leeper requests a full attendance of the Boy's Brigade this evening. Devotional service at 7:15; drill at 7:50 p. m. Boys will be dismissed at 8:30 p. m. Parents thinking of having their boys join are requested to be present. Quite a number of boys are now being received. Boys wishing suits are requested to put in their order immediately at Fixley & Co.'s, as an order will soon be sent.

George Francis Train, without doubt the most unique figure on the platform today, will speak at the Masonic Temple Saturday night, November 18. Mr. Train is one of the most brilliant speakers of the nineteenth century, and is drawing crowded houses wherever he appears. His travels and various adventures give him an immense store of interesting information, which he relates in his own peculiarly happy way.

HUNG HERSELF!

Mrs. Harry L. Blye Has a Narrow Escape From Death.

Young Son of David Scott Kicked on the Skull by a Vicious Horse.

Mrs. Harry L. Blye, who lives at the Edsall homestead, near the east yards, had a narrow escape from death this morning while she was about the house doing her work.

She had occasion, about 10 o'clock, to go into the pantry, just off the kitchen, and, standing near the wall, stooped down to pick up an article which was on the floor when the woolen fascinator which she wore on her head caught in an iron hook in the wall.

In her first struggles to get loose, her feet slipped from under her and the fascinator slipped down around her neck. She was unable to free herself and there she hung for some time before assistance came.

When freed from her perilous position her face was black and blue and she was almost choked to death. Her unconscious form was borne to an adjoining bed room, and when Dr. O. C. Stemen reached her bedside she was in a very critical condition. He applied restoratives and attended to her injuries and when he left she was beyond any immediate danger.

Mrs. Blye is a young lady and her husband, Harry L. Blye, is a switchman employed at the east Pittsburg yards. A few months ago her mother met with a sudden death at the Edsall homestead, having dropped dead suddenly while she was about her work.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

Dr. W. H. Myers, of this city, was this morning hastily summoned to the home of David W. Scott, a farmer, living in Lafayette township, near Zanesville. The young son of Farmer Scott was last evening, about 8 o'clock, kicked by a vicious young horse. He was struck in the head and it is thought his skull was fractured.

The father is one of the best known farmers in that locality.

A CHILD HURT.

This morning the little son of John McMullen, the contractor, met with a painful accident at its parents' home on Monroe street. The child was playing with a clothes wringer and in some way got one of its fingers caught in the rollers. Dr. Kessler attended.

THROWN FROM A WAGON.

As the Christmas holidays are only forty-one days away, perhaps a few hints on needlework suitable for Christmas presents will not come amiss. One of the newest and most attractive designs for a sideboard scarf is made of a fine quality of firm white linen and has a border of natural size grape leaves worked in three shades of green Roman floss. The greens are fast color and will wash perfectly. The edge of each leaf is buttonholed over a heavy cord for the rim, using the dark shade of the floss. The veins are outlined with the second shade and the filling is done in honeycomb or scale stitch in shaded effect. The pattern is remarkably novel and pretty. Sofa pillows of the inevitable denim have taken on a new aspect. An all over braiding pattern, in some conventional form, is first stamped, then couched with soft, pliable white couching cord. The effect is handsome and decorative, and as the under side is left plain there remains a soft spot for the head, an item of contributory comfort that is too often overlooked. A pretty gift for a college room is a pillow with alma mater's seal embroidered upon it. One which graces a Farnham hall room is of Yale blue silk with the college seal embroidered in white. The young woman who made it says it was easily done. The seal was drawn first on a circle of transferring paper to fit the pillow; then the design was applied to the silk square and worked in outline. The idea, of course, can be carried out for any college. Bedroom curtains of cornflower blue are made with a hemstitched border embroidered in a spreading design with a coarse white linen floss, and there are bed spread, toilet stand, cover, and pillow shams to match.
